FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Portland Creatives Launch Online Course - Mt. Freelance

Former W+K creatives designed the course to help freelancers freelance better

Portland, OR (July 8th, 2019) Aaron James and Andrew Dickson announced today the release of their new online course for creative freelancers. Mt. Freelance is a 33 video course designed to help freelancers get the work they want, charge what they're worth, and work for clients in ways that ensure they get hired again and again. The new online course can be accessed immediately at www.mtfreelance.com for $397.

"Freelancing can be stressful. Every job is a negotiation, and you worry if work slows down it will never pick up again. We created Mt. Freelance to share all the tips and tricks we've learned freelancing." explains co-founder and instructor Aaron James.

"It's all the stuff we wish we knew when we started freelancing. And with more agencies and shops building freelancers into their business model, the time feels right to share what we know," adds fellow founder and instructor Andrew Dickson.

Mt. Freelance covers every aspect of freelancing, from networking and self-promotion, to how and why to charge lots of money for your services, to best practices in regards to client work, as well how to treat your career like a business instead of a job or phase of your career. Members are also invited to a private Facebook group where they can ask questions and share advice.

Aaron James has been freelancing as a creative director and art director for over a decade, including year-long stints at both Wieden+Kennedy and Kamp Grizzly. Andrew Dickson was a copywriter at Wieden+Kennedy for seven years and has been freelancing the last five for clients like Apple and Instrument.
